time is infinite
yet i see it
as the vacuum
of a brief existence
the hourglass
within and without me
takes my life away
it comes just to pass perhaps slowly
or too fast
for me to take it in i stand at my foundation sure of the past
maybe not understanding yet sure because it can't be changed i see today
as something i dreamed of yesterday i think of tomorrow as a fantasy i haven't reached perplexed eyes

a mind to question
thoughts to doubt

i was cast into a multitude of embryonic faces

and shadows of unknown bodies do i give a damn?

am i to be born again or do i make an extension from my origin to this new environment?

i can't be sure of living in dreams or touching reality nor can i take the mask of dreams from your face for fear that mine are the same i wonder, "where is god? is he in me or in the life i now search to find?"

if you will be honest with me share your joys and sorrows reveal your triumphs and failures it will help me to admit my own for in others i can see and find myself

i need your honesty for deceit distorts understanding will you help me?
tell me what's inside and if you will let me i will try to tell you who i really am i am everything that is or becomes a part of me i am everything that touches me i am all that i give when today is no longer mine there is still a tomorrow

HOMECOMING

Electric excitement persisted through the crowd as the Mars Hill Lions, always fighters though not always winners, were upset and shut out 17-0. Newberry College's victory put a damper on a week of pep rallies, making banners and selling of corsages. The spectators zealously supported the Lions with cheers of approval and rounds of applause until the very end. A dance and parade took place before the game; and a concert, featuring Rick Nelson, after the game seemed to leave everyone contented at the end of a busy weekend.

BASCOM LAMAR LUNSFORD FESTIVAL

Regarded as the "world's most authentic festival of mountain music," the Fifth Annual Bascom Lamar Lunsford Festival was celebrated on the campus in October, bringing amusement and cascades of memories to the community. All mountain musicians and music aficionados were invited to participate in the all-day celebration. In addition to jam sessions and square dances, spinning and carving were presented and interested everyone at the festival. Originator of the concept of folk music festivals, Mr. Lunsford allows only one festival to bear his name, the annual gathering at Mars Hill.

A FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM

Shevelove's and Gelbaib's "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" was presented by the division of dramatic arts in Owen Theatre during homecoming week. Every device of the theatre was used to divert the viewer and immerse him in an atmosphere of comedy. The fast-paced slapstick offered something for everyone, from the ribald carrings-on attending the house of lycus and its curvaceous occupants to the tender romance of two love-struck young virgins. Exaggerated gestures, movements and appearances kept the audience in stitches until the closing scene, when everyone was granted his desires and contentment radiated from the stage.

THE CRUCIBLE

Arthur Miller's topical drama, "The Crucible," was presented at Owen Theatre by the drama department. The late seventeenth century's Salem witch trials provided the setting for a lively and unique performance. Appealing to the campus audience, the department then took the play on tour during the January mini-mester.

MINI-MESTER PROJECTS

Ralph Fickel (left) and Dean Edwards — senior history majors — received from President Bentley framed "Certificates of Appreciation" given by the state supervisor of national forests in North Carolina. The certificates commended the students for the good work they did in research projects for the Forest Service during the January mini-term.

FOOTBALL

The Mars Hill Lions took a great step forward this season when they joined the Carolinas Conference. The Lions met tough new competition and, fighting valiantly, completed the season with a three and six over-all record.

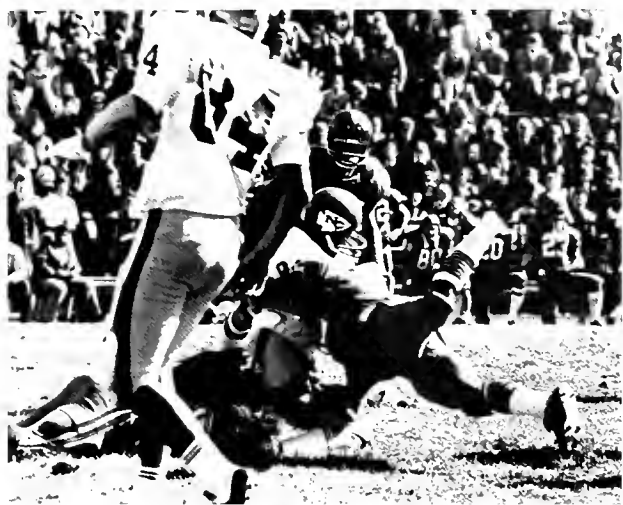

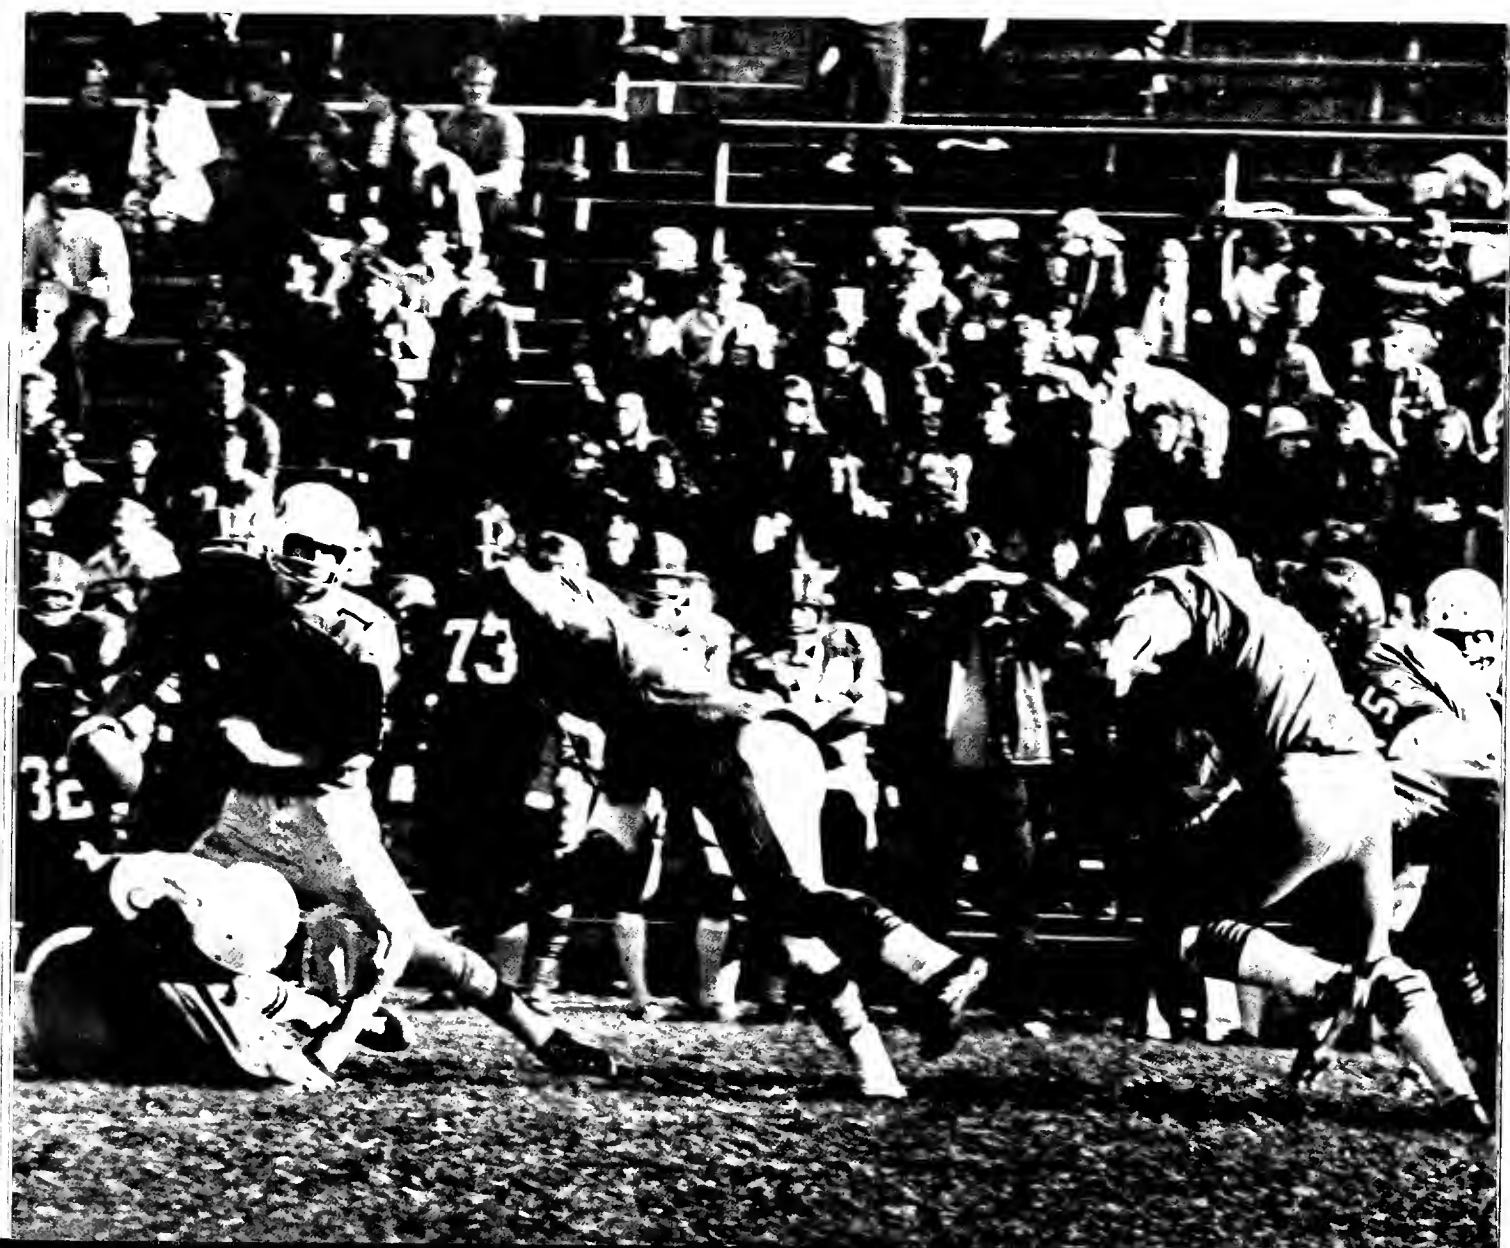

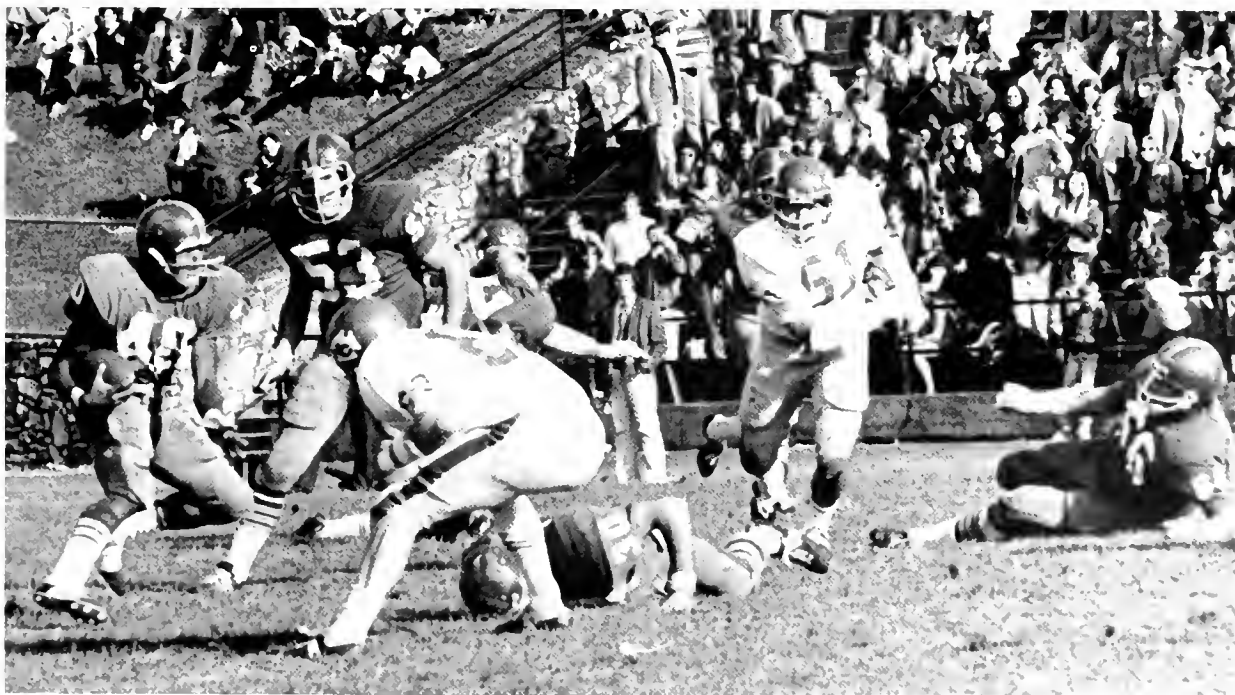

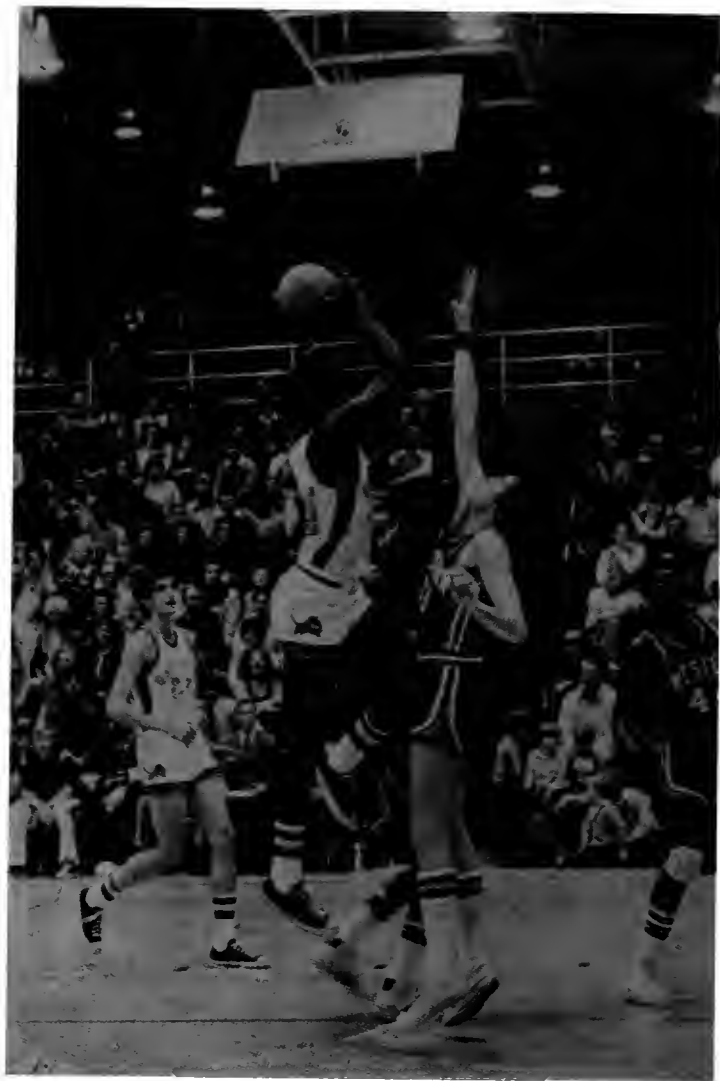

At the end of the 1972 football season, Mars Hill's program of intercollegiate sports underwent major changes. Harold Taylor, head football coach since 1970, resigned and took a high school coaching job in Tennessee. Don Henderson, who had been athletic director since 1950, asked to be relieved of those duties and was given a full-time assignment in the physical education department. The positions of athletic director and head football coach were combined, and the college hired University of Tulsa head coach Claude Gibson to fill the new position. A native of Asheville who played at Lee Edwards High School and N.C. State, Gibson played five years of pro ball as a defensive back with the Oakland Raiders and the San Diego Chargers. He also coached at N.C. State and with the Raiders, the Buffalo Bills and the Boston Patriots before going to Tulsa in 1969. Thus, when the Lions take the field next fall, they will be under "new management."

BASKETBALL

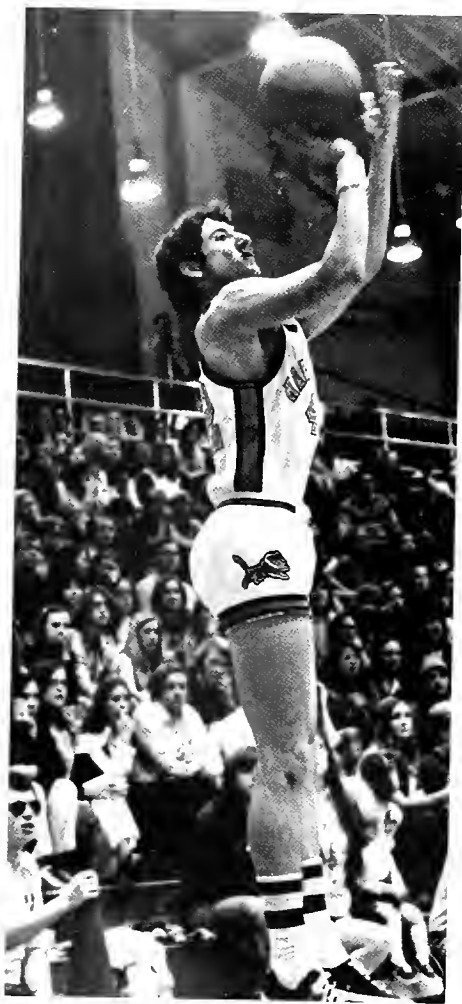

Playing for the first time in the Carolinas Conference, the Lions seemed determined to prove they could compete against such cage powers as Elon, Guilford, Lenoir Rhyne, Catawba and High Point. Led in scoring by Joe Bridges and Jerry Hayes, in rebounding by those two plus Mike Miller, and in floor play by Joe Kruk, Derek Thomas, Kenny Ward, Jim Epting and John Adeimy, the Lions did surprisingly well in the first half of the season. Highlight of that action was the winning of the Cosmic Tournament in Asheville just before Christmas. At the season's mid-point in January the Lions had a 10-7 record and looked like they would finish high in both the conference and in NAIA District 6, but February proved to be an up-and-down month for Coach Lytton's crew. They dropped their last five games of the season and finished with a 17-17 record, including a loss in the opening round of the conference tournament to Catawba, which eventually won the crown. Hayes set a new career scoring record and Bridges was named on both the all-conference and all-district teams.

From within, not without If I never fear, I never doubt Though many things have come and gone
The life I live is always my own
The life I live
What will it be
I look to myself
To see.
